

Leadership Is....

Done by... (who?)

- anyone → those who take initiative, control of the situation and make a positive impact.
- those who reflect on their values and own leadership development

I feel this way because.....

I think being a leader comes with a certain mentality that you need to want to be a leader. Also, leaders aren't always famous or well known, they can be someone as simple as a family member

Done for...

(what ideal/purpose)

- making a positive impact in the community
- creating good social values
- creating responsible social norms.

I feel this way because.....

Leaders help guide society in a positive direction. And should promote the good. They should be a positive resource.

Done best with...

(what skills &/or values)

- people skills (collaboration, communication, listening)
- organization + time management
- confidence + initiatives/goals
- critical thinking
- persuasion in positive way
- metacognition

I think this is true because.....

You need to have initiative and be self-motivated + determined to be a leader. You're someone people look up to, and you have a great deal of responsibility so it's good to manage time. It's good to reflect on your own thinking.

Done well when..... (a leader focus/philosophy)

- focus on what benefits more than just self → benefits everyone
- a leader remains calm under stress
- make things better ~~from~~ than what they were before constantly improving

I think this is true because.....

Leaders should always aim for a positive direction and goal. You can never stop improving, so make things better than before (even if they're already good) — develop good habits.
